On January 15, 1861, Young Irelander Terence McManus died in San Francisco. McManus was born in Ireland in 1811 and later moved to England, where he began a successful shipping agency. In 1843 he returned to Ireland and joined the Young Ireland party. During the Young Irelanders' brief uprising in 1848, McManus joined Smith O'Brien and John Blake Dillon in the only armed action that occurred. After the rising's suppression, McManus was captured by the British and put on trial. Like most of the other Young Ireland leaders, he was sentenced to death, which was then commuted to transportation for life to Tasmania. He arrived there in autumn 1849, but in 1852 he managed to escape to the United States along with Thomas Francis Meagher. While Meagher settled on the East Coast, McManus settled in San Francisco. He served in the US Army and reached the rank of Brigadier General afterwards, and decided to try his luck at his former business -shipping. But McManus fell into poverty when his business failed, and his health rapidly failed as well. It was after his death, however, that he performed his most valuable service to the cause of Irish freedom. On learning of his death, American Fenian leaders decided to return his body to Ireland for burial so that Irish Republicans could rally around the grave of a fallen comrade. Crowds of Irish gathered in New York as Archbishop John Hughes blessed McManus' body. Thousands greeted his body and gathered at rail stations all the way to Dublin. But Dublin's Archbishop Cullen, refused permission for his body to lie in state at any church in Dublin. Thus, for a week McManus' body lay in the Mechanics' Institute, while thousands passed by paying their respects. But Father Patrick Lavelle, a Fenian supporter, defied Cullen and performed the funeral ceremony on November 10, 1861. A crowd estimated at 50,000 followed the casket to Dublin's Glasnevin Cemetery, and hundreds of thousands lined the streets.

First, I would like to thank my fellow officers for all their hard work over the past year and I look forward to working with them in the upcoming year. Without dedicated members like them, the division would not be where it is.

We have a lot planned—from building renovations to dances—we are off to another busy year! Visit the Division's website at www.div2aoh.org to view all the upcoming activities. I think you will have to agree that there is something for just about everyone.

Don't forget the great family resource you are entitled to as a member of the division—namely the Hibernian Hall. Time to book your parties and family get-togethers. Friday night is "Family Night" - bring the family by for some food, good music and some good times! Baby-sitting available. All the best!

A Message from the AOH-DJW Corporation President

There was a meeting on January 8th to discuss the plans for an extension to the front of the building. A handicap bathroom for our members is the main reason for this project. Ken Gill presented plans to the officers of both boards and some construction trade members. After an hour of discussions, explanations and revisions, all agreed to go ahead. The price tag has yet to be fully totaled. Pat Healey will chair the committee with the following members: (all part of the construction crew) Dennis Malone will oversee the plumbing assisted by Andy Ryan; Mike Shannon and Bill Kirnan will take care of the electric; Paddy Harding, Bobby Betz and Kevin Diamond will do the carpentry work; Jim Ryan will take care of the floor and wall tiles. John O'Sullivan will oversee the concrete work. The walk-in cooler which is also part of the planned extension is still being planned. While the above mentioned men are overseeing their respective areas, workers will be needed to help them. Any ideas will be considered. There are a set of plans at the club for all to look at and pass on any suggestions. Hopefully at the quarterly AOH-DJW Corp meeting (Sunday, Jan 30th at 2PM) we will have a general working plan, time schedule, and a material needs list. Any questions, please call me at 534 9315.

John Greehy, AOH-DJW Corp President
